

Reniere&Depla is an artist couple that works and lives together. They reside alternately in their studio in Belgium and France.

Their paintings and drawings are a representation of the outside world as a projected inner world. The fascination for the layers in perception is the origin of their painterly research.

In the last years their work evolved through the collecting and interpretation of source material to an evolving artwork series. This process is unique due to the intense cooperation between two individuals during the conception and execution processes.

The collection of the source material is preferable a slow process. A deep or more intense research must unlock places that would remain uncharted after a short work visit.

Private digital photo's & image archives, human contact, literature, museums, the city scenery, odors and light must be confronted in order to be interpreted and transformed into deepened images that contain the pursued stratification.
